

Dr. Crescencio GARCÍA-SEGUNDO
National Autonomous University of Mexico (UNAM)
Institute of Applied Science and Technology (ICAT)
Circuito Exterior s/n
Ciudad Universitaria, Coyoacán
Mexico City (CDMX) CP 04510
Mexico
e-mail: crescencio.garcia@icat.unam.mx

Crescencio García-Segundo is a tenured professor at the Institute of Applied Science and Technology (ICAT) of the National Autonomous University of Mexico (UNAM) in Mexico City (CDMX), Mexico. He is currently on the sabbatical leave at the Institute of Biological and Medical Imaging of the Helmholtz Center in Neuherberg, Germany.

Jessica MAGALLÓN-MÁRQUEZ

National Autonomous University of Mexico (UNAM), Faculty of Sciences, Mexico City (CDMX), Mexico

Sandra X. MORALES-VARGAS

National Autonomous University of Mexico (UNAM), Faculty of Sciences, Mexico City (CDMX), Mexico

Edgar Israel FUENTES-OLIVER

National Autonomous University of Mexico (UNAM), Institute of Applied Science and Technology (ICAT), Mexico City (CDMX), Mexico

Dra. Rosalinda ORTIZ-SOSA

National Autonomous University of Mexico (UNAM), Institute of Applied Science and Technology (ICAT), Mexico City (CDMX), Mexico

TEMPORAL STABILITY OF CONTRALATERAL THERMAL ASYMMETRY IN LOWER EXTREMITIES OF SUBJECTS FREE OF METABOLIC DISEASES

In this work, results are shown on the temporal stability of the contralateral thermal asymmetry of two volunteers free of metabolic diseases. The results suggest that the thermal asymmetry values for subjects without any metabolic pathology present variations within the expected limits.